MICHAEL ANGELO SAID

"It's in the perfection of all the little details through which we get the perfect whole."

In this sentence is summed up the secret of this remarkable success and wonderful popularity of JANSSEN pianos—"the perfection of all the little details" that enter into the making of pianos. The Janssen tone is superbly beautiful, the action responsive and light, the cases rich and attractive, the construction very durable, and the price, considering the quality is very low indeed.

JANSSEN pianos may be purchased upon convenient terms of payment. In my stock of pianos, which embraces seven well known standard makes, ranging in grade from the cheapest that is good to the best that is made, is emphasized throughout the maintenance of a distinctly proper relation between price and quality. Every instrument in my line I consider the best in its respective grade, and in view of the superior buying and selling facilities and the economical management of my business, I am enabled to quote prices upon every piano in my line; which are immediately recognized by musical critics as embodying remarkable value for the money. To close out every used piano and organ in my stock within the next week I have made price reductions which will appeal irresistibly to bargain seekers. These instruments have been carefully overhauled and are fully warranted. Any used instrument accepted at full price within two years toward any new piano in my stock. I have a few good used pianos for a trifle more than $100.00, and in organs may be found nearly every make at prices ranging from $10.00 upwards. You may state your own terms upon these used instruments. Bargain bulletin of used instruments and catalogues of new pianos with prices and terms received upon application. An opportunity to show these extraordinary values will result in the consummation of a sale with all who are seeking unusual values.
